It is my strong believe that NAB should focus on the programming or lack of programming provided by local, national, and cable networks today. after all is it not NAB's role to serve the public rather than attempt to limit a willfully subscribed to service such as XM radio?

Given that Seattleite provides a seamless means by which one enjoy continuous uninterrupted high-quality music, news, entertainment, and yes regionally specific services such as road conditions. Given the line-of-sight, multi-path, and antenna pattern characteristics of traditional FM broadcast stations in a region such as the San Francisco Bay Area there is no possible way for them to provide the same level of quality and reliability to there customers. As an individual who drives 1500 ? 3000 miles per month in that region a service like that I receive from XM radio is the only solution for me.
